True Freedom.
Yet the will is free;
Strong is the soul, and wise, and beautiful.
The seeds of godlike power are in us still;
Gads are we, hardy heroes—if you will.

Matthew Arnold

Rose and Rue.
A bit of rose and a bit of rue,
The rose for me and the rose for you.
For I am weary, unsooth, forlorn,
And you are fresh as an April morn.
With dears, without regret,
And I remember and you forget,
